To the Students of
ALEMANY HIGH SCHOOL
San Fernando, California

My dear Students:

While the Senior Year in a High School is attended with many problems of study endeavor, it is likewise a time of much joy and happiness as you look forward to the accomplishment of graduation. Becoming a graduate of high school gives a viewpoint in retrospect of a far greater appreciation for both the effort and the accomplishment of a four year course.

As we see the knowledge and the training manifesting themselves in a more or less natural mode of accomplishment, we realize the more the depths of our gratitude to Almighty God and to our sponsor, the Mother of God.

It is our earnest prayer that the Divine blessings of Our Saviour will be bountiful upon you, and that the fruits of Alemany training will be lasting and abundant.

Faithfully yours in Christ,

ARCHBISHOP
of
Los Angeles

blessing

HIS EMINENCE James Francis Cardinal McIntyre blesses Alemany High School May 30, 1959.

Blessed by Cardinal McIntyre at the end of last year, Alemany High School—fruit and example of his Eminence's tireless crusade for schools in the Archdiocese—confidently has completed the fourth year of its great mission, the Catholic education of the youth of the San Fernando Valley.

Campus

Through the centuries from the monasteries of the Middle Ages, across the world to the Missions of California and their modern successors, the Church has pioneered in education, building soon after her altars of sacrifice, schools for her children that they might be built up as living stones in Christ.

Alemany gives the treasure of Catholic education

OUTSIDE ST. JOSEPH'S HALL is the girls' parking lot which is filled each day with the cars of students who travel long distances.

ADMINISTRATION OFFICES of the Boys' and Girls' Departments occupy a key position on the campus.

to the Valley cities

Spreading out in mission style along Rinaldi and back to the low hills, lies Alemany High School with its chapel tower rising as a sign of welcome to students from twenty-six Valley parishes.

OUTSIDE AQUINAS HALL, the boys' first classroom building, students gather between classes.

ALEMANY HIGH SCHOOL welcomes boys and girls of the San Fernando Valley to another day of Catholic education.

Blue prints are finally realized with the new

ALEMANY'S SISTERS OF ST. JOSEPH of Carondelet enjoy the beautiful simplicity of their convent home.

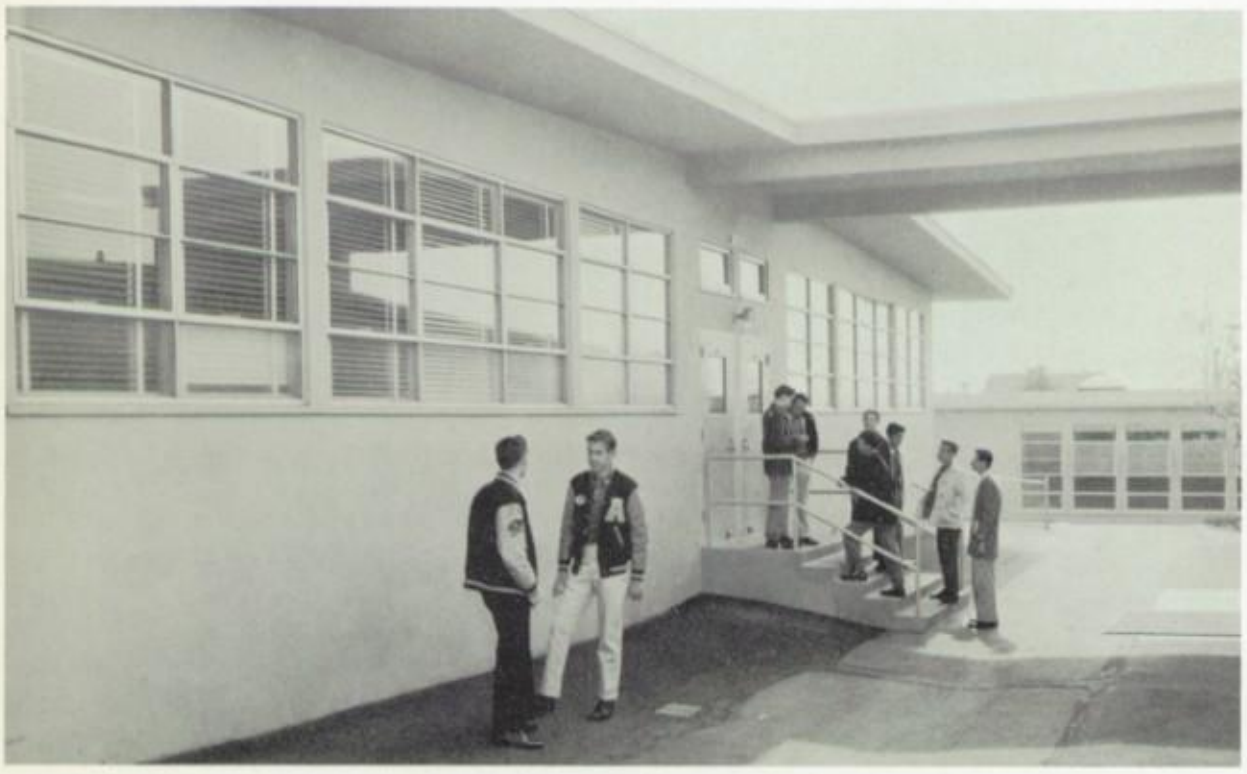
Finally a blue print dream came true, with its new Xavier Hall, Alemany now has twelve buildings: a priest's house, a convent, six classroom buildings, two offices, a chapel-library unit, and a gym.

IN THE PRIESTS' HOUSE adjoining the campus, the Oblate Fathers of Mary Immaculate find many hours of happiness.

MARIAN HALL houses the Homemaking Department, the Sodality and music rooms, and two sophomore classrooms.

Xavier Hall

IN LOURDES HALL the boys study basic subjects and electives.



NEW THIS YEAR is the boys' Xavier Hall.

study, play, and pray

Alemany provides various centers of activity—the chapel, the library, the gym, the spacious playing fields—to accommodate the spiritual, intellectual, physical, and social needs of its students.

THE LIBRARY offers students a place of quiet study and research.

OUTSIDE THE BOYS' STUDY HALL and library building students gather for informal conversation.

ON FIELD DAY boys make maximum use of Alemany's extensive campus.

Faculty

Representing the continuing work of the whole Church, the Alemany Faculty, comprising the Oblate Fathers of Mary Immaculate, the Sisters of St. Joseph of Carondelet, and lay teachers, labor daily for the instruction and santification of Valley youth under the authorization and blessing of the Cardinal.

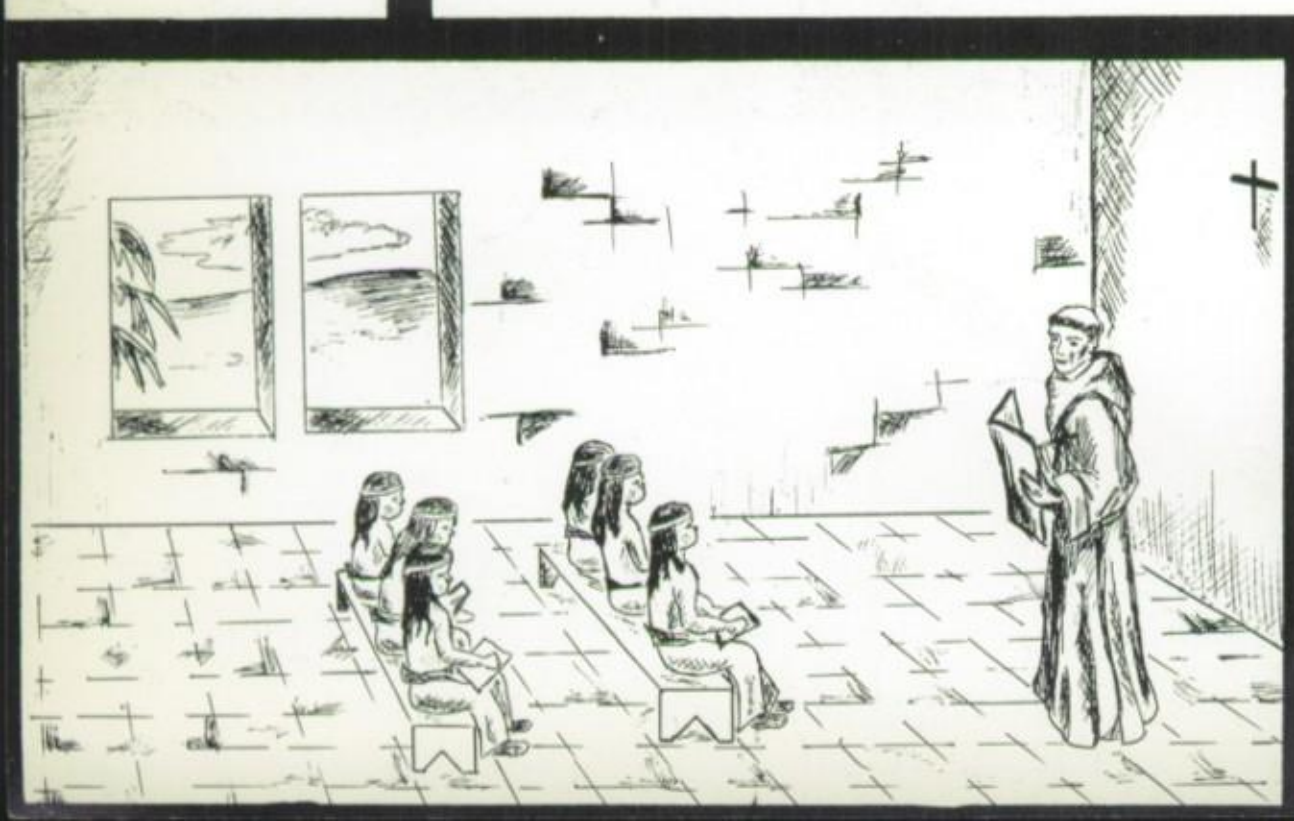
Classes

In all classes, no matter what the subject taught, teachers in the Catholic educational system today as yesterday endeavor to help students to realize their capacities, to think with the Church, and to act according to the principles of their faith, thus contributing to the betterment of the world of tomorrow.



Students learn the truths

Holding a place of honor, religion classes give students an understanding of the life of Christ, a knowledge of the great dogmas of Faith, and a fruitful appreciation of the Sacraments.

SELECTING BOOKS for their religion term papers are Jim Fitzgerald and Jim Haigwood.

GROUP GUIDANCE PANELISTS, Kathy Knoblauch, Mary Lou Aust, and Jane Kane, lead their class in a discussion of character.

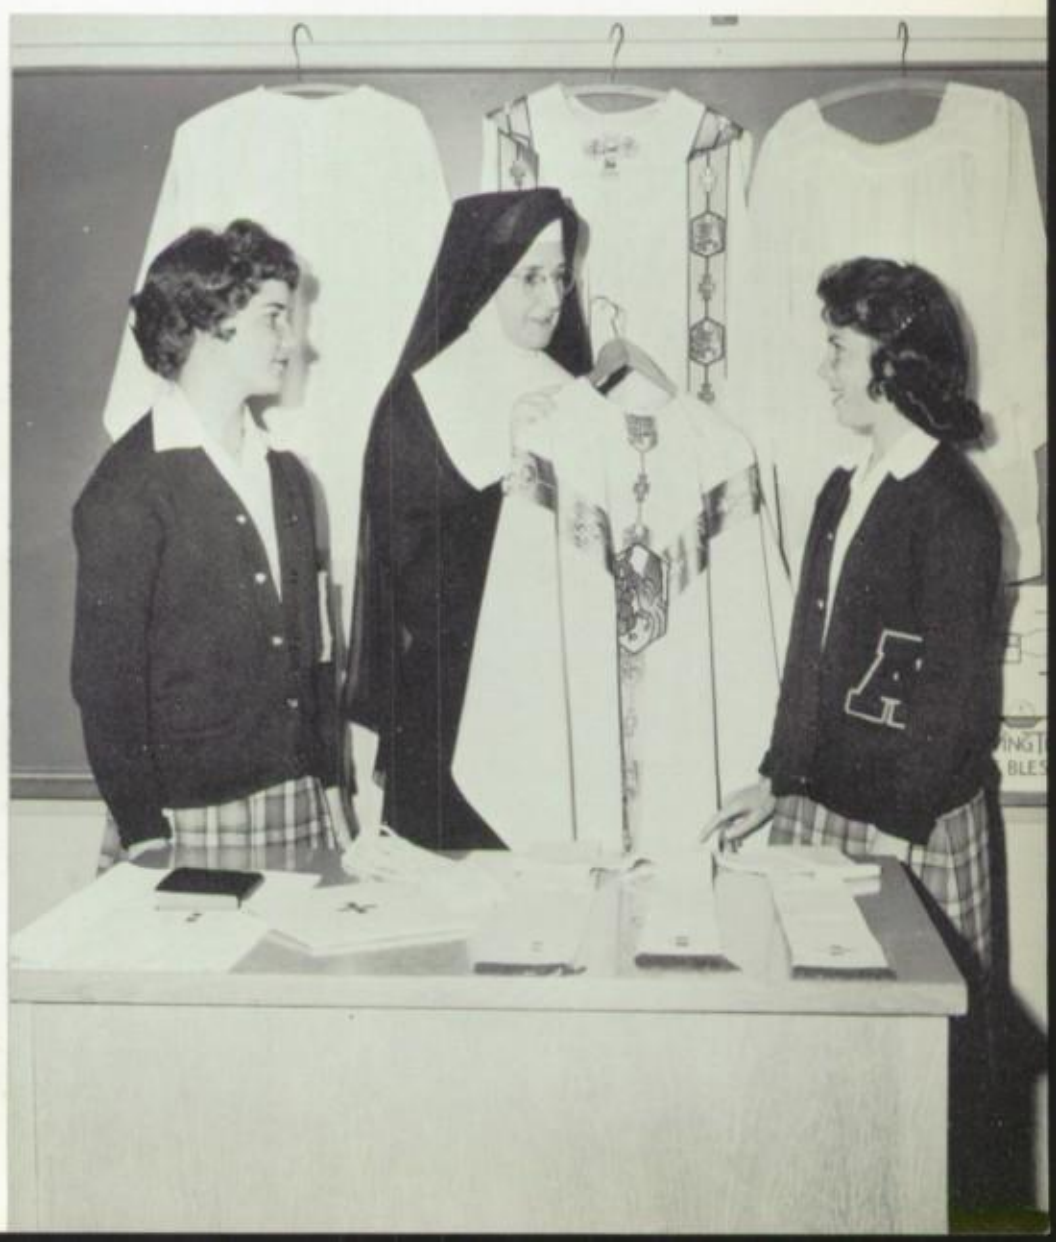
CHURCH HISTORY students, John Popelar and Gary Walthers, graphically review the origin and development of the various Christian sects.

and duties of their faith

REVIEWING THE LIFE OF CHRIST are Religion II students, Sandra Falwell, Helen Haynes, Joanna McDuff and Kathleen Hessler.

PLEASED with Richard Mueller's latest efforts, Father Gottenbos compliments him on his term paper.

SISTER CELINE explains the significance of the priest's vestments to sophomores Kathy Harland and Joan Furgal.



FATHER CANTRELL emphasizes his explanation of a marriage problem presented to him by seniors Deanna Hazner, Dolores Krajniak, Pat Sullivan, and Kathy Eidson.

English courses aim at

A vital part of education, English lays the basis for greater understanding among the peoples of the world through the teaching of literature, while grammar, vocabulary, spelling, and composition build a foundation for other studies.

DEEP IN THOUGHT, juniors Mary Jonckheere, Mary Hunt, Jo Ann Hansen, and Kathy Chulick study a modern classic.

STUDENT PANELIST Bob Raine leads a discussion on American authors with classmates Kevin Mullery, Steve Smith, Don Angello, Chris Elliot, and Randy Jones.

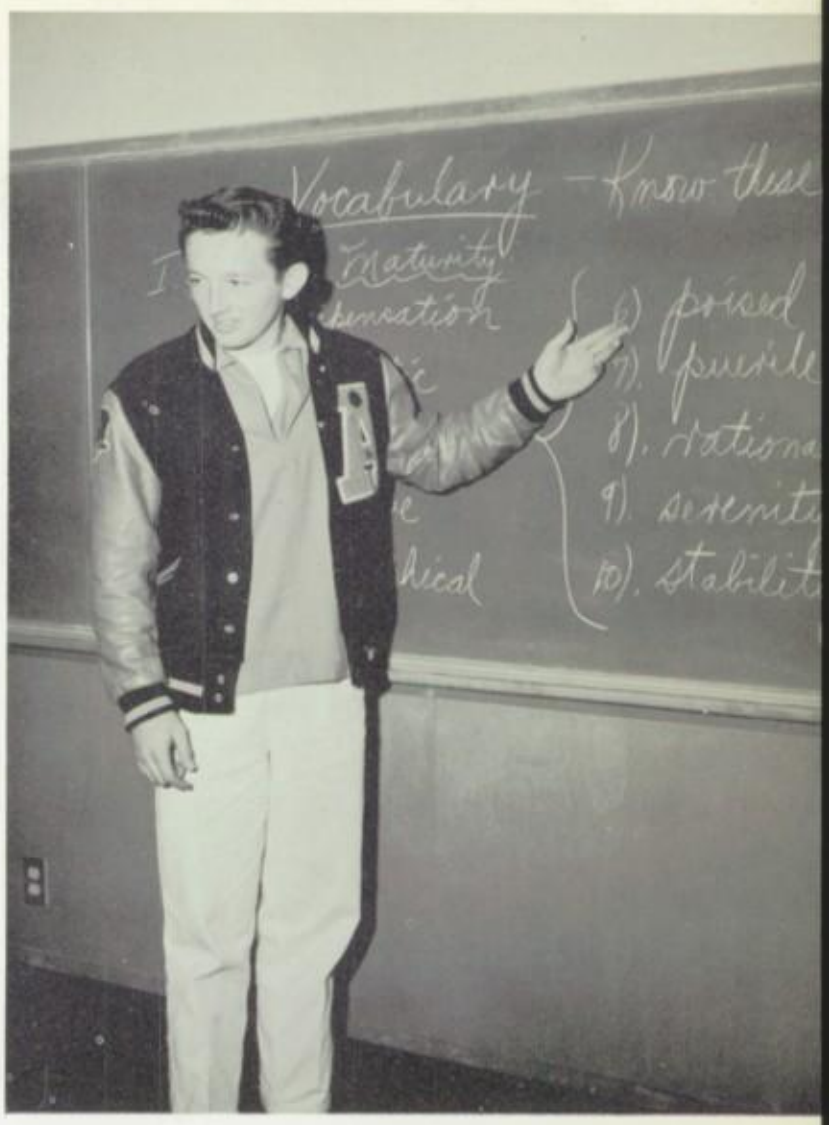
effective communication

TERM PAPERS on "The Hollow Men" are discussed by Andy Lazzaretto, Father Rath, Hank Russell, and Dan Durante.

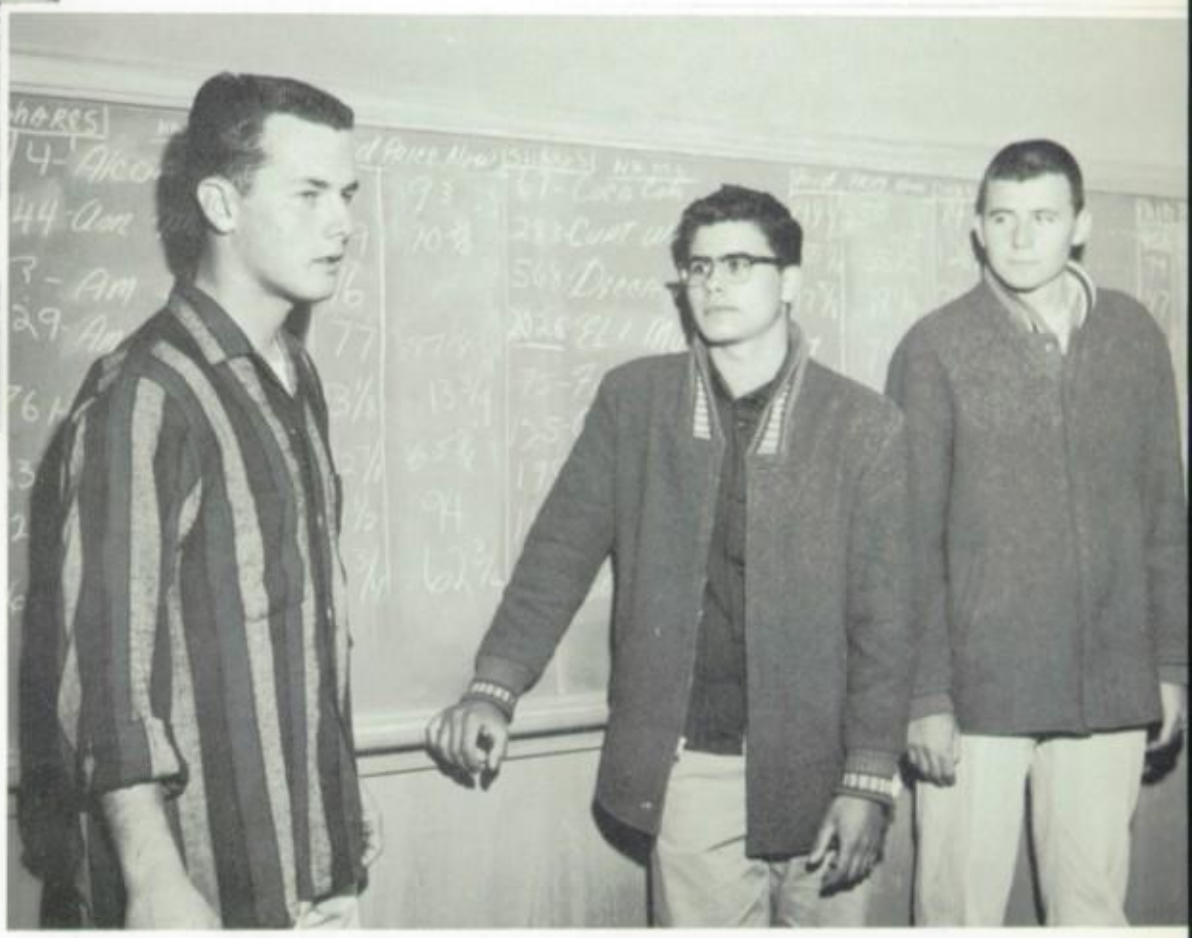


VOCABULARY IMPROVEMENT methods are explained by student "teacher" Chuck MacGregor.

SAMMY and other objects of nature give Nadine Zdroy, Diane Jeansonne, Linda Walthers, and Mary Ann Henry material for English compositions.

Exciting social studies

WORLD HISTORY STUDENT Jenine De Caro prepares to answer a question on Palestine while Natalie Sergio, Jane Shackel, and Margaret Clements wait their turns.

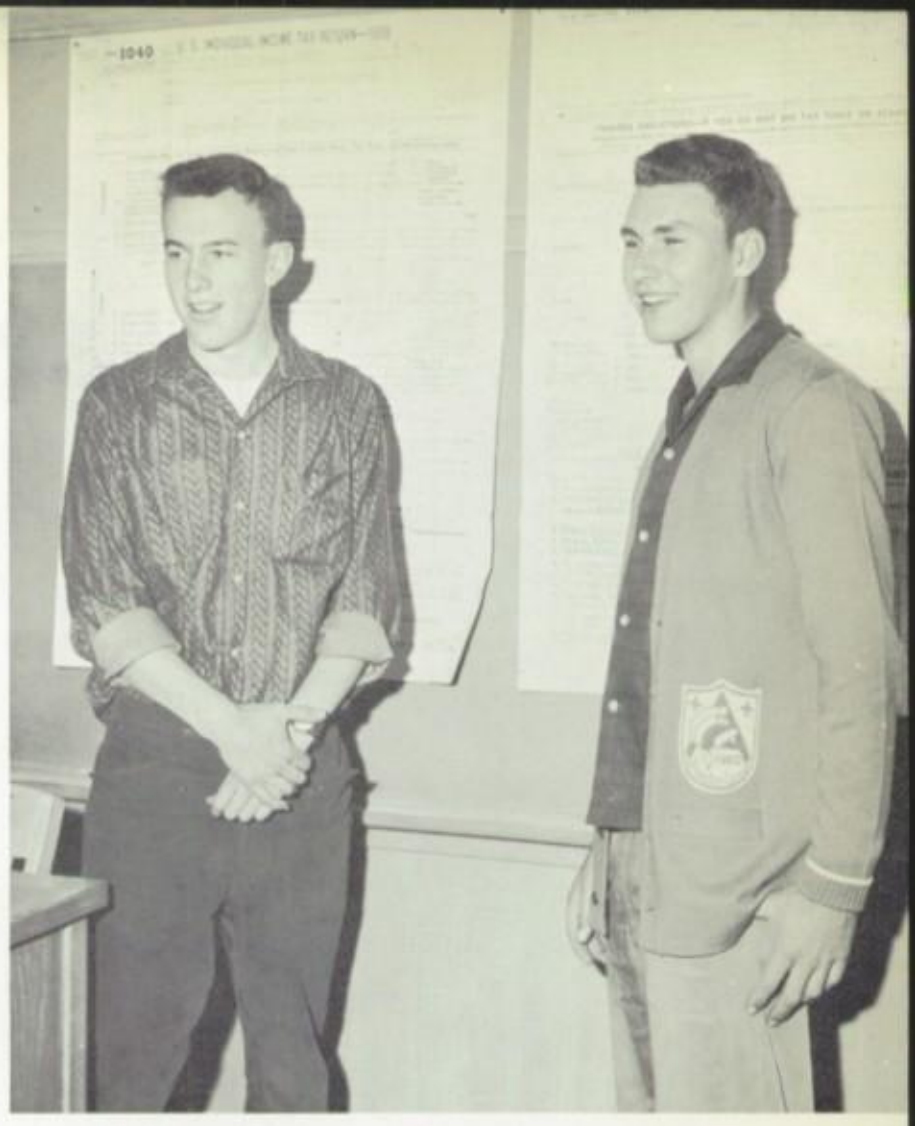


STOCK EXCHANGE STATISTICS are given to the economics class by Gerry McAlevey as Alfred Metzger and Bill Hare listen attentively.

A "SENIOR SCHOLASTIC" article, read to the civics class by Kitti Kettelkamp, intrigues Judy Jones, Mary Menke, and Kaye Lynch.

awaken a world concern

In an age of the dialogue of nations, the social studies have become a major concern of education, and Alemany, therefore, offers its students courses in United States and world history, civics, sociology, and economics.



MR. TEBBS' QUESTIONS on income tax are readily answered by Terry Parsons and Carl Doyle.

DISCUSSING SOCIOLOGY scrapbooks are seniors Barbara Masvidal, Eileen Melcher, and Diane Wright.

Spanish and Latin unlock the doors to other

Through the study of Spanish and Latin, Alemany students acquire new language skills and are introduced to the thought, the history, and the customs of other peoples and ages.

ROMAN MASTERS Diane Rogers, Sharon Cummings, Mary Lou Aust, and Eileen Melcher receive homage from their Latin I slaves.

A TAPE RECORDER helps Ron Byers, Jack Tebbs, and Dave Wendler with Spanish pronunciation.

SPANISH I students, Marcella Forgette and Sylvia Stahoski, arrange an all-Spanish bulletin board.

VIRGIL'S AENEID claims the serious attention of seniors Richard Bothwell, Tony Weltman, Steve Smith, Greg Stoulil, and Jim Forrest (REAR).

SISTER JUANITA, assisted by Marilyn Militello and Sharon Sheldall, prepares to show a travelogue on Latin America to her Spanish III class.

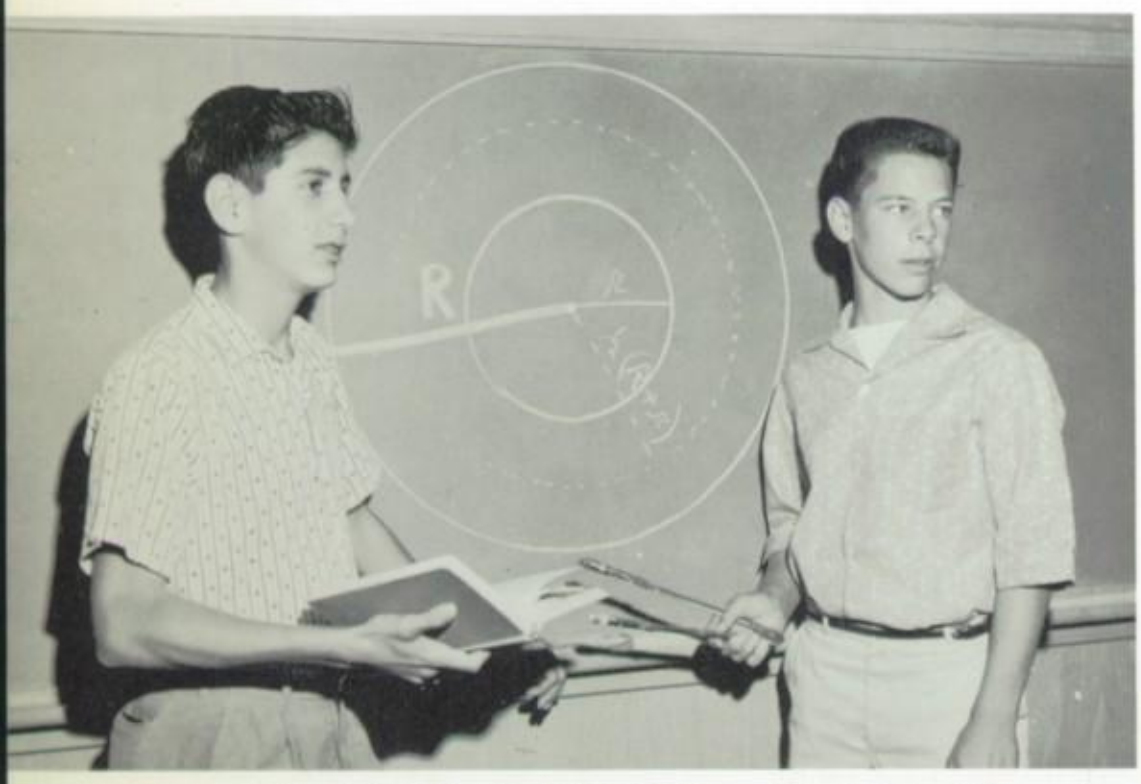
ROSAE SUNT RUBRAE! Peggy Ehrhart, Mary Metzger, and Pat Madden proudly hold their Latin valentines which received awards in Sister Augustine's unusual contest.

EN ESPANOL Valerie Molidar and Veronica Daly relate their autobiographies.

Mathematics teaches abstract thinking and skills

ADVANCED MATHEMATICS STUDENTS Gaylon Rodin, George Chapman, Diane Hennen, Sharon Bowen, Mary Angerman (IN CAR), and Diane Jeansonne get ready to leave for their Monday class at Loyola University. Through the program these honor students develop their creative ability in mathematics.

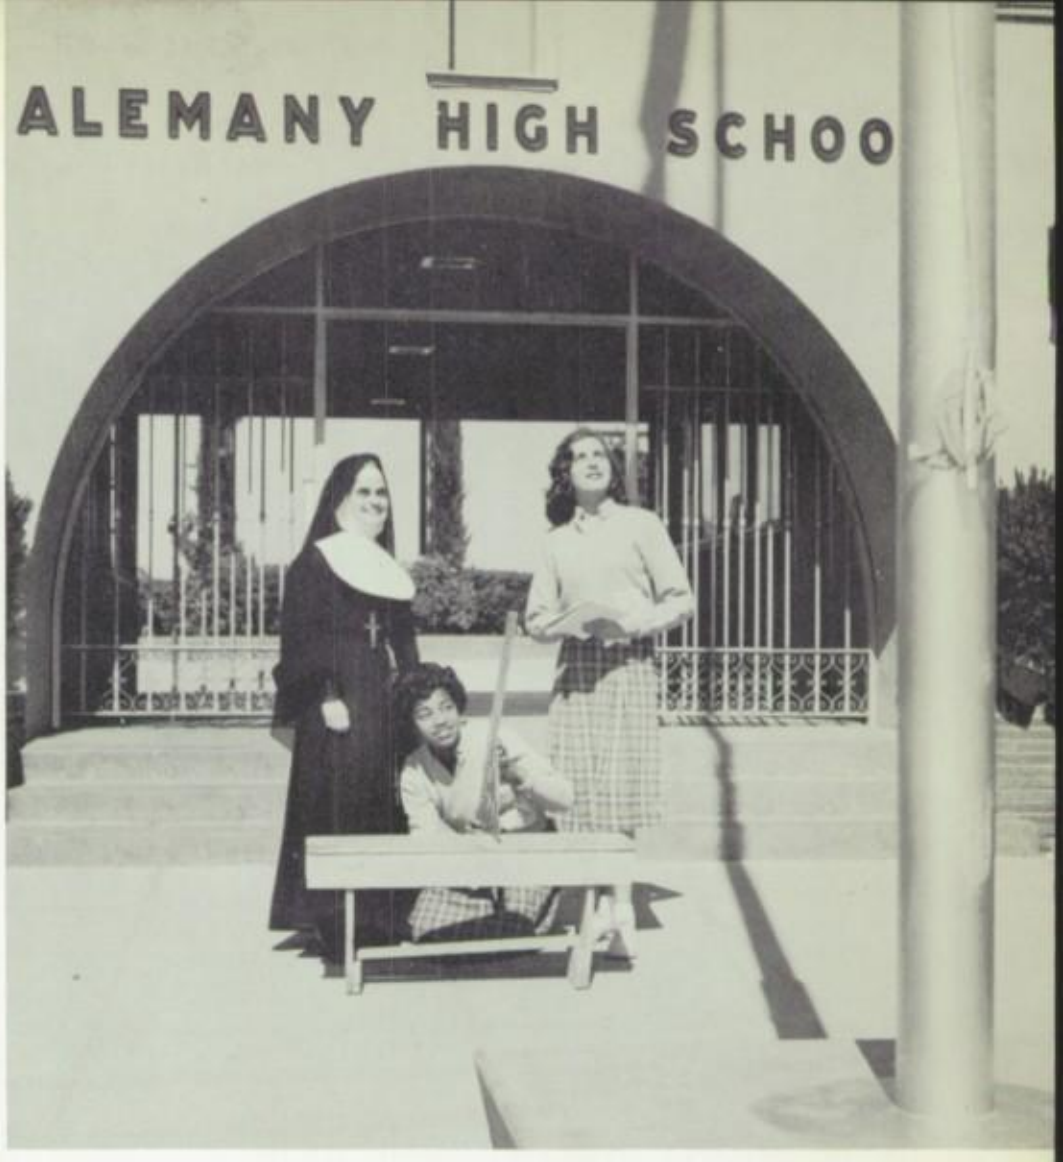
"BLACK! WHITE! BLACK! We know the color of our hats," say Advanced Math problem solvers, Dale Anne Gilmore (FRONT), Michele Doone, and JoAnn Blake.



DEMONSTRATING THE LOCUS of points midway between two concentric circles are sophomores, Manuel Mesa and Jim Curran.

for future progress

Today with the advance of scientific discovery and the precision necessary in modern industries, the need for mathematics has increased, and Alemany has correspondingly widened its program to include Algebra I and II, geometry, trigonometry, and special senior math.

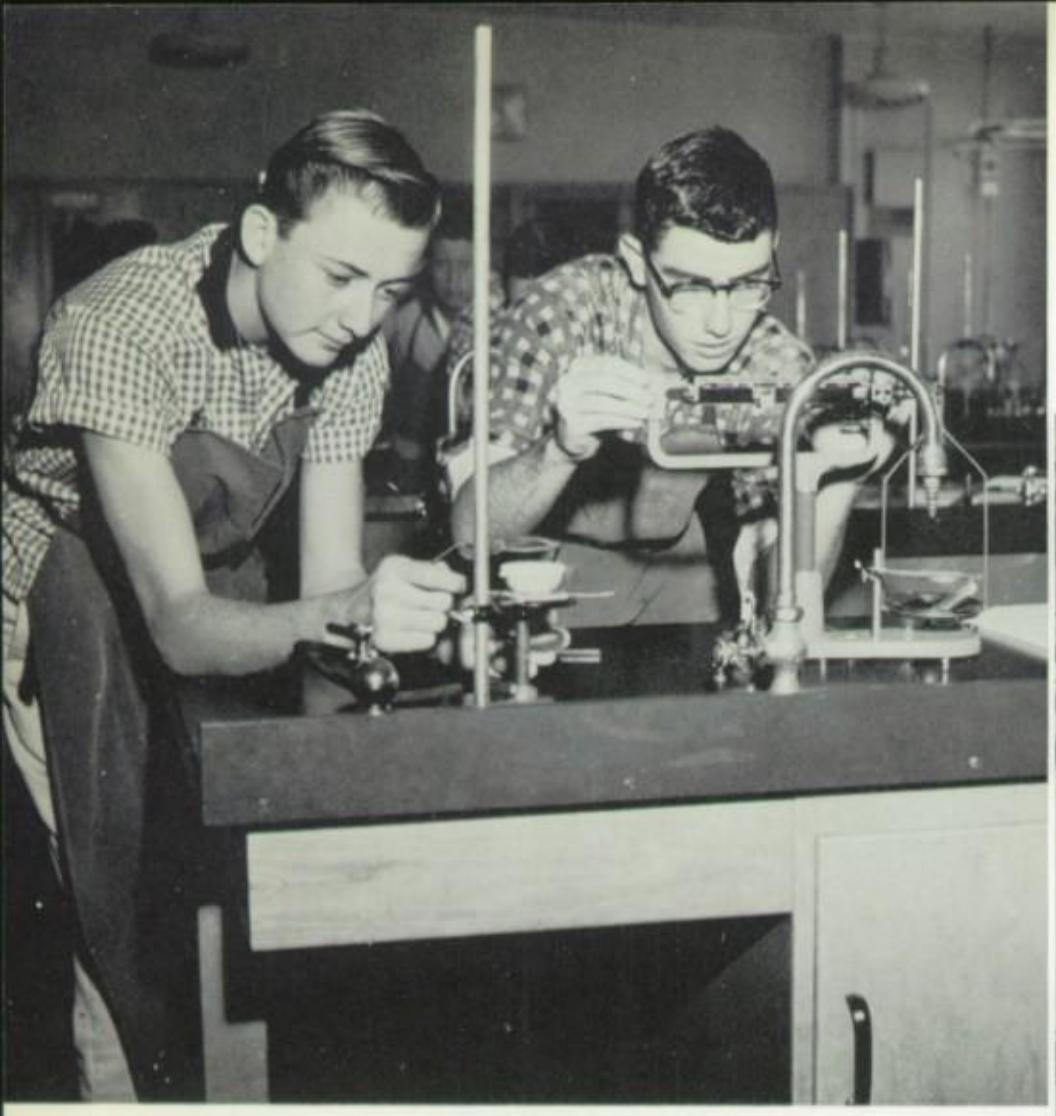


WITH RULER AND PROTRACTOR, Sister Jeanne Anne and trigonometry students, Phyllis Thomas and Gerry Garcia, set out to measure the flag pole.

SQUARING A BINOMIAL is no longer a mystery for Algebra I students, Charles Borgquist and Jerry Pawlak.

TRIGONOMETRY STUDENTS, Dave Lachey, Dave Edenhofer, and Paul Wolfe, compare answers on their slide rules.

Science opens new



CHEMISTRY STUDENTS Gerry Jauron and Frank Agello perform a gravimetric analysis of a sodium hydrate.

OBSERVING THE HABITS of guinea pigs brings first-hand biological knoweldge to Mary Ann Arnold, Linda Rosten, and Rosalyn Mercy.
